

INSTRUCTOR PROFILES

New England Explorer

July 11 to July 18, 2010

Colby Meehan, Instructor

Colby has recently finished her Master's Degree at Northern Arizona in Outdoor Education, and holds an undergraduate degree in Adventure Education and Wilderness Leadership from Prescott College. While at school, Colby has served as the Course Director for Prescott's New Student Orientation. Colby completed a semester with NOLS, sailing, sea kayaking and backpacking in Baja, Mexico. In addition to having Wilderness First Responder training and being a registered Maine Trip Leader, she is a certified sailing instructor and has been teaching on the coasts of Maine where she grew up, and the west coast for the past seven years. When not by the ocean, Colby can be found skiing and backpacking in the mountains of the Southwest. She has led both the Maine Wilderness Expedition and Pacific Northwest Expedition for us.

Tim Farr, Instructor

Raised in Northern Michigan camping and boating, Tim has spent the last five years in Alaska where he has been an Expedition Sea Kayak Guide and university instructor for such classes as: Kayak Rolling, Expedition Sea Kayaking, Ice Climbing, Glacier Travel and Crevasse Rescue. He is a Wilderness First Responder, a certified Maine Trip Leader and a Level 2 Avalanche technician, as well as a National Outdoor Leadership School (NOLS) alumnus. In 2006, Tim participated in a NOLS Mountaineering course to the India Himalaya and has recently been a part of a 30-day expedition across the Wrangell Mountains of Alaska. Tim is equally at home on the ocean or in the mountains guiding and instructing. When not in the mountains or on the water, he can be found finishing on his degree in Adventure Education and Wilderness Leadership. Tim is also an avid photographer – focusing on landscape, adventure sports and wildlife.